Autumn School 2018

Introduction

The DLGS/IOER Autumn School has been organized as a central activity of the doctoral programme of the Dresden Leibniz Graduate School and the Leibniz Institute of Ecological Urban and Regional Development. It is intended to be a platform to present and discuss theory, research design, methodological approaches and specific tools in environmental sciences, while also sharpening communication and presentation skills. The DLGS/IOER doctoral candidates and post-doc fellows come from a variety of disciplines. That's why, the DLGS/IOER Autumn School calls for stressing the value of an interdisciplinary approach that brings together knowledge from diverse perspectives.

Aims

The goals of the DLGS/IOER Autumn School include:

- ◆ Providing doctoral candidates with the opportunity to present their dissertation progress (on research design, methods and results);
- ◆ Discussing different theoretical and epistemological approaches, with supervisors, external experts and postdoctoral researchers;
- ◆ Introduce doctoral candidates on the art of writing successful research abstracts and getting published, and
- ◆ Fostering collaboration among the DLGS, the TU Dresden and IOER.

Format

The 2017 DLGS/IOER Autumn School comprises a variety of activities including:

- ◆ Lectures by invited guests;
- ◆ Oral presentations of doctoral candidates on theories, research design, and results;
- ◆ Oral presentations by postdoctoral researchers;
- ◆ Comments by invited discussants on doctoral presentations;
- ◆ Workshops covering important elements for fostering active participation by all attendees, and for discussing research projects and results;
- ◆ Social activities strengthening support networks / sharing thoughts on the day's sessions.

Location

- ① Leibniz Institute of Ecological Urban and Regional Development
01217 Dresden, Weberplatz 1
